WALL STREET EXPECTS DECISION ALLOWING DISTRIBUTION.

And Expects It To-morrow-Chicago and Northwestern Jumps on Report That Inton Pacific and New York Central Will Jointly Obtain Control of It.

The remarkable rise of 131, points in Chicago and Northwestern common stock in connection with a 6 point ce in Northern Securities and smaller vigorous advances in Union Pacific, New York Central and St. Paul, tended to confirm Wall Street's belief that the Northern Securities suit will be definitely settled by the Supreme Court on Monday in favor of the Hill contentions and that following this there will be a readjustment of the railroad situation in the North-

While there has been no confirmation of this, Wall Street believes that the rise in Chicago and Northwestern stock is due by which Union Pacific and New York Central interests will take over Northwestern stock at $300 a share and finance the purchase by the issue of bonds bearing 37 per cent, interest. The comest of the Union Pacific and New York Central in the railroad situation in the Northwest is looked upon by the Street as comented by the recent announcement that Mr. Harriman is to become a director e Central, in which Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Stillman, also of the Union Pacific are important figures. They are also the controlling factors in the St. Paul.

Hill and his associates. division of the holdings of Northcific and Great Northern between ion Pacific and the Hill interests be known until after the closing of the Northern Securities books preparatory to the distribution, for Wall Street believes nce Northern Securities from under , where it closed yesterday

The great advance in Union Pacific itself s also been attributed to competitive ying of the shares, and the exceptionally heavy purchases, running perhaps to 100,-000 shares, by a well known brokerage house a week ago were ascribed to the Hill This as well as the other features interests. This as well as the other features of the Northern Securities situation, which has so long influenced Wall Street's actions, will soon be cleared up if the Supreme, Court refuses to-morrow to grant the writ of certicrari asked by Mr. Harriman's lawyers and permits the Hill plan of distribution.

DEFENDS HIGHER FARES.

They Will Meld an Increase of Only 815 .-000. Says L. I. R. R. President.

With reference to the increase of passenger rates on the Long Island Railroad. which is to begin on Feb. 1. President Potter said yesterday: 'The company has been furnishing commuters' tickets at between six and seven mills per mile per passenger. or for less money than it costs to furnish transportation. The statement that the company would make an additional $600,000 a year from the proposed increase is erroneous. The increase in income from the higher rates will not be much more than $75,000 a year. The advance was made only because the company for two or three years past has not been making money. The company is acting well within its legal rights The advances on regular tickets and commuters tickets combined will figure p only about one cent and four milis per

WABASH AND B. & O. AT PEACE. Last Obstacle Out of the Path of the Goulds to the Sea.

The Baltimore and Ohio and the Western Maryland, which is the seaboard extension of the Wabash, have formally declared peace, so that the last obstacle to the plan f the Goulds to reach the Atlantic sea board is removed. The Baltimore and Onio has consented to the cession of strips of land along the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to the Western Maryland so as to give the latter a right of way to build its road from Cumberland to Cherry Run to a connection with the West Virginia Central, the trustees of the canal, through a court decree, receiving $500,000 for the grants of land. In addition the two roads have signed an agreement by which the Western Maryland will use the Baltimore and Ohio tonings between Cherry Run and Cumberland, pending the completion of its own line. The line is expected to be in operation before the end of the present year.

Delaware and Hudson's Adtrondack Extension

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 28 .- The contract for extending the Adirondack line of the Delaware and Hudson road from Thurman to Warrensburg was let to-day and the work is to be completed by July As to who receives the contract information is refused by the officers of the company. The proposed line is three miles long and will open up a new field of freight and passenger service for the Dela-freight and passenger service for the Dela-ware and Hudson in its competition with the Hudson Valley Railway. It is inti-mated that later the Delaware and Hudson will build a road between Warrensburg and Lake George, thus completing a circuit which will further strengthen it in its fight

GOSSIP OF WALL STREET.

The extraordinary prominence in yesteray's market of the stocks that are to be affected more or less by the pending readustment of ownerships in the railroad situ tion of the Northwest gave rise to much conjecture as to the extent to which the advances that have already occurred in this group of securities may have discounted things in a speculative sense. The rise yesterin Chicago and Northwestern was sensa-On the curb Northern Securities stock had a further exciting rise, and it was this, apparently, that started Northwestern, Union Pacific and St. Paul up in the regular market. Long deferred developments in this Northwestern railroad situation are berieved now to be near at hand.

The movement of greatest interest to the speculative element in the market yesterday was the violent advance of Union Pacific to 1217, the highest point yet touched by the stock in the course of the entire upward movement so far. The speculative leadership observed in Union Pacific last week was the same as that under which the last previous movement from around 114 to above 120 was conducted. The prediction had been that the next upward swing would carry the stock to a new high point. It sold last week as low as 115. On the decline to 115 a lot of speculative stock that had been distributed on the level of 120 ten days before was repurchased. The bull party operating in Union Pacific apparently has perfect con-trol of its market. When it finds that it is getting too much company on the long side it supplies stock at the advanced prices and lets the market off; on the declines it replaces its lines and under favorable conditions resumes the campaign. Believers in Union Pacific, expecting to see it sell much higher during the year, advise those who would follow the stock to take a position on the long side of it for the long pull, with the idea of making, say, one half of one's holding ctive, but never parting with the other half Taking a line of 1,000 shares, 500 might be sold on the sharp bulges for a turn and replaced on reasonable price recessions.

The bull movement in Steel preferred last year culminated on the level of 95. The high point was 25% in the first week of December. On Jan. 16, this year, it sold at 25%, and yeserday again it sold at 951. Hitherto the oull party has invariably met with a great deal of long stock around 95, more, apparently, than it has been willing to take. A little higher, say, at 98, it would look as if the campaign had been resumed in earnest Charles Minzesheimer & Co. were prominent as buyers yesterday of both the preferred tock and the bonds. The statement will be

It is asserted as a bullish fact that there has not yet been any such distribution of tocks as would naturally mark the culminaion of a big bull market, and that so long as money is below a parity with securities, i.e., so long as money can be procured at from to 312 per cent, and invested in securities vielding from 4 to 5 per cent , such distribution of stocks is perfectly feasible. Com-mission houses have fewer stocks than they were carrying at the beginning of last De-cember on approximately this same level of rices. In brokers' hands there is a great surplus of unemployed margins, representing reserve buying power sufficient, many be-ieve, to support a bull speculation of considerable proportions.

Erie common disappointed an enthusiastic bull following yesterday for the first time since this movement started by turning eral market and losing in the last half hour all that it had gained in the first hour and closing at a net decline of 14 per cent. Previously throughout the week the stock had been conspicuously strong when the general market was reactionary, and it was a sur-prise, therefore, to see it fall back sharply in the late trading yesterday with other stocks advancing. It had been the strongest feature of the market on the opening, advancing 1/2 per cent. further to 44%. On its singular reaction in the last half hour it sold as low as 434. The transactions on this setback were very heavy. During the last two points of Erie's advance manipulation had become very apparent to experienced onlookers, but it was of so strong a character that some shrewd followers of the advance evidently expected it to continue indefinitely. The action of the stock yesterday suggested the possibility of there having been an extensive distribution on the last two points or so of the

into a paragraph," said a friendly Wall Street reader one day last week. "There is a man that I have been seeing at luncheon two or three times a week ever since I have been down here. He is not a broker and has no regular means of livelihood that I know of. He is one of those chaps who more or less live off the Street, nobody knows how. He eats in a certain New street place where the membership of the Stock Exchange is very largely refreshed. When I first noticed him end of the food and drink counter and have is sandwich and glass of beer standing. Gradually he became more prosperous and I found him eating more substantially at an obscure table. Then he began to work forward, coming more and more into prominence as a patron of the place. I watched his progress with interest. I may say that I have a bowing acquaintance with the man. In some mysterious manner he seems to have shared steadily in the rising fortunes Street. Lately he has got into his real stride of life. He has an air of important prosperity about him. He sits at one of the most prominent tables, making a stir when he comes in, and has invariably his bottle of wine with the luncheon. I stopped at his table a few days ago as I was leaving and said to him: 'Well, I see that you have your cold bottle regularly.' He smiled comfortably and reregularly. He smiled comfortably and replied: Yes, I've really got to have it. He wasn't aware that I have been watching him rise from the sandwich and beer stage of his oareer. He didn't say that about his wine boastfully at all, but merely as if it was the most natural thing in life for him to have formed the habit of taking wine at luncheon. I trust that I shall not see him go back to trust that I shall not see and then to the obscure table in the corner and then to the counter again, but I have seen so many of them carried backward on the whirliging

The most mislending speculative advice has thadvertently overstayed its market. Speculative sentiment at the present time is far from being all one way on the market. There survives from the December break an obstinate bear crowd, the violence of whose hostility to the market would surprise those who move only in bullish circles. A trader, now bearish, whose judgment of market conditions is often good, retorted attention to the strength exhibited that in his opinion the market was then "perform-ing the dance of death." The phrase recalls one that was used by the late Mr. Travers one day when a talkative bull, knowing of a professional character, which wondesem to insure active speculative opposition for a while to further advances. The Boston literature is most bearish on the Steel stocks Amalgamated Copper and Rock Island.

These questions were asked in an anonymous letter received yesterday by each member of the Democratic county committee. The letter caused indignation among the members of the committee and probably will lead to an investigation of the management of the campaign fund. PRISONER WANTED TO BET. Woman Nabbed for Shoplifting Asked Cope to Go to a Poolroom.

Mrs. Marie Roberts, 34 years old, a good ooking woman, was arrested in a department store on Fulton street, Brooklyn, late Friday afternood on a charge of shoplifting. When searched it was found that she had three handsome silk waists in pockets in her clothing and $180 in cash in her pocket-mit her to go to a certain place on Myrtle avenue to place a bet on Stonewall, run-ning at the New Orleans track. The officers refused. "Well, then, will you place the bet for me?" asked the woman.

"There are no poolrooms on Myrtle avenue," said the detectives, "and if there were we wouldn't take your money there."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the woman. "No poolrooms on Myrtle avenue. Why I wish I had one half the money I have won and lost in one of them. My husband became estranged from me as a result of my infatuation for the racetrack and the poolrooms, and we are now living apart. I can attribute my downfall to the Brighton Beach racetrack and that roolroom, where all my money and and that poolroom where all my money and all my happiness has been dissipated during the last year or two."

Mrs. Roberts was arraigned before Magistrate Dooley and held in default of $500 bail for Special Sessions. The detectives are looking for the Myrtle avenue poolroom.

WRONG NAMES ON THE CHECKS. Brooklyn Waiter Arrested for Aiding in

Frands on Hecht Bros. Louis Brockman, alias Louis Freedman 35 years old, of Grand and East Fortyeighth streets, Brooklyn was arrested early yesterday morning by Detective Sergeant Gargan of Headquarters on a charge of forgery.

Charles E. Wallace had charge of the purchasing ledger at Herht Bros.' department store on Sixth avenue. It is alleged that he got away with sums of money variously estimated at from $18,000 to $50,000. He was arrested and indicted by the Grand Jury on Jan. 24. He is in the Tombs in default of $10,000 bail. His home is at Bay Eleventh street and Cropsey avenue, Bath

Beach.
On Friday he sent for M. H. Morse of James. Schell & Elkus, attorneys for Heeht Bros., and, it is alleged, confessed that while employed by the firm he frequently while employed by the firm he frequently erased the payees' names from checks and substituted that of Louis Freedman, whose real name was Brockman. In the name of Freedman, Wallace said, Brockman opened an account at the Jarmulow-sky Bank and deposited the forged checks.

Brockman is a waiter. He confessed, the police say, that his share in the plunder was $18,000, and that Wallace got over $30,000. He was held by Magistrate Pool in the Tombs police court in $5,000 bail for examination on Feb. 2.

Deputy Sheriff Rinn has received an attachment for $5,549 against Richard A. O'Brien, doing business as the Michigan and Ohio Hay Company, with offices in the Hay Exchange at Thirty-third street and Eleventh avenue, in favor of the First National Bank of Allegan, Mich. The attachment was granted on allegations that he had abandoned his office and had departed from the State, leaving debts unpaid and had gone West.

Summit, Miss. landed in Newark yesterday morning with hardly a cent in his clothes to meet a brother whom he had not seen or hear from in eleven years until a few weeks ago when, he says, the brother wrote him to come to Newark and meet him at the Palace Hotel. Yates stepped off the train and walked into the Palace Hotel, a short distance off, to find that his brother was not known there and was nowhere in sight He also realized that he was in a strange town far from home, with more snow about him than he had ever dreamed could be anywhere south of the North Pole. He remembered, too, that he had but a few cents in his pocket, and he walked out to

When the wintry breeze blew his coat aside there was disclosed a leather belt about his waist with a big revolver in a holster.

A policeman saw Yates and took him to Police Headquarters. At first the coppers thought the big Mississippian was a come-on beguiled from his sunny home by confidence men, but after questioning him they made up their minds he was just an unsophisticated Southerner who had butted into a heap of hard luck.

Yates said that he had had over $500 in the bank, which he drew out to come to Newark. Just before he took the train a fellow townsman rushed up to him and asked him for the loan of $500, which he said he must have immediately. Yates let him have it and took the friend's bank book, thinking he could draw on it when he got to Newark.

He had $55 when he boarded the train, but somewhere on the journey his pocket was picked. The passengers took up a collection and gave him $4. Not much of this is left now.
